McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

A Round-About Paper

The reaping machine was invented by a Scotchman, a clergyman. A few years ago a stained glass window was put in the church where he preached and dedicated to Rev. Mr. Bell, the inventor of the reaping machine. Many people suppose that it was an American who started the reaping machine idea. No doubt since Mr. Bell in his student days with his crude reaper made by the village blacksmith, cut down the grain on his father's little farm, many improvements have been made on reaping machines, until today we have the self-binding reaper. One of the arguments of the so-called tariff reform party in England is that the American-made reaper is sold cheaper to British farmers on account of the American tariff, as the higher price obtained in America enables manufacturers to get a big price here and keeps out the British-made reaper.

The twine used on these self-binders has created a big business. Manila hemp, single strand, makes the best twine. So much about reaping machines may seem trifling to those who never used a reaping hook or a scythe, but to those who recollect what a harvest field was like sixty years ago, this mention of reaping machines and the glorious Indian summer weather we are now having may put them in mind of the days when "Corn rigs were bonnie."

Mr. Lindsay, a school teacher in Dundee, Scotland, was really the inventor of telegraphy and the electric light. Mr. Lindsay, after he had retired from teaching school, living in an old garret, devoted all his gloaming of life to the study of that wonderful thing we call lightning. Before Edison was born this old school master had verily invented cable telegraphy and electric light. At midnight Mr. Lindsay wrote a letter to a Dundee newspaper; the tenor of said letter is as follows:

"Mr. Editor—
"I am a happy man today. I write this letter, electricity giving me light to do so, and today I went down to the harbour and by an insulated wire sent a message under the water from one dock to another (40 yards). It is only a question of a few years when we will be able to send messages to our friends in America and have our homes lighted by electricity."
"Yours, etc.,
"LINDSAY"

I had a copy of this letter, but in changing from one house to another my wife burned up all the trash, as she called it. Carlyle after he had written his great history of the French Revolution, left the MS. on the table and went out to call on some neighbours; "her," his wife, and the servant girl went, as they said, to tidy up his room, and burned up all the French Revolution as trash! So Tom Carlyle just had to write it all over again best way he could.

An Italian invented the wireless telegraphy which to ships at sea is so useful. This wireless telegraphing requires a receptive battery on board the ship, and we, if we are to be impressed with what the clergyman tells us, must have a receptive battery. There is no doubt but that Edison is just now the greatest inventor of applied electricity, but I could not refrain from mentioning what the old Scotch schoolmaster did.

IAN McDOUGALL

W. R. C. Entertains

The members of the local Woman's Relief Corps had as their guests on Tuesday afternoon and evening, the Reading corps, about fifty members of the sister lodge being present.

During the afternoon progressive whist was enjoyed in I. O. O. F. hall, the members and guests being further entertained by selections on a fine Edison Victrola; reading, "Old Brown Jug," Mrs. Edwin Eastman; recitation, "Our Flag," Miss Margaret May; piano solo, Miss Emily Walker; reading, "Deacon's Courtship," Miss Sadie Hobbs; piano solo, Miss Emily Walker; reading, Miss Sadie Hobbs, and a grand final tableau of the Star Spangled Banner.

At 6.30 o'clock a bountiful supper was served in G. A. R. hall to which all sat down with words of praise at the sight of the attractive tables. An appetizing menu was served, consisting of salads, baked beans, rolls, pickles, all kinds of fancy pies and cake, gelatine and coffee.

The very efficient committee who had charge of the supper were Mrs. Frank Valentine, Mrs. George Mears, Mrs. Elmer Philbrick, Mrs. Andrew McTernan, Mrs. Delia Jenkins, and Mrs. Chas. Emerson. Mrs. Charles Buchanan was in general charge.

The entertainment committee consisted of Miss Mae Morrill, Mrs. Wm. Allen, Mrs. David Lindsay, and Mrs. Stephen Jackson.

Communication

To the Republican Voters of Andover—

While listening to the eloquent appeal of Mrs. Curtis tonight for justice, that being the latest cry of the suffragists, please bear in mind that the majority of women do not want the ballot. Suffragists do not believe in the rule of the majority, the principle upon which government in a democracy is founded, as is shown again and again by their utterances. In Secretary Bryan's statement endorsing woman suffrage he says: "For a time I was impressed by the suggestion that the question should be left to the women to decide—a majority to determine whether the franchise should be extended to women, but I find myself less and less disposed to indorse that test." It may interest you to know that among the Congressmen whom the suffragists have "blacklisted" for defeat are both Senators Root and Lodge, two of the most able and experienced statesmen in the country. It might be thought desirable at present, when most of the civilized world is at war, and when our government will be confronted with difficult and delicate problems, to have men of experience in Congress. These men have committed the crime of maintaining that the Federal government should not force woman suffrage on unwilling states. The suffrage leaders, knowing that many states do not want it, are determined that it shall be forced upon them, and that the men who decline to help in the undertaking shall be defeated.

BEARD. JOLLY BOOK OF BOX-CRAFT.

Full directions, so simply given that very young children can understand them, for making all sorts of things from cardboard boxes. Well illustrated and sure to prove delightful for rainy days. —790 B381

CAVE. BOY'S CAMP BOOK.

An eight-day camping trip of a boy scout troop is used as the means for presenting information on the choice of grounds, tents, personal equipment, camping kit, camp discipline, cooking, health, morning scouting and afternoon fun. Written in a popular, enthusiastic style. —796 C31c

CLARK. CONTINENTAL DRAMA OF TO-DAY.

A close, concise and very intelligent study of the subject from the construction side. Takes up important dramatists from Ibsen to the present day chronologically by countries, giving brief biography of each, bibliography of plays, and comments and questions on more important plays, but no text. —809.2 C54

CURTIS. PLAY AND RECREATION FOR THE OPEN COUNTRY.

A practical handbook for all those interested in the problem of recreation in the rural community, whether for the child or the adult. Suggests plays and games for the home and the rural school; describes the organizations of the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls, and gives ideals and methods of organizing social centres. Written by one who has expert knowledge and practical training. —790 C94

SOCCER

At Glen Essex last Saturday, Andover was defeated by Lawrence in the qualifying round of the National Cup, being the first reverse of the season. The game opened fast with Andover showing the better football, and in fifteen minutes the United had scored the first goal. After this Andover's game slowed, due greatly to the poor work of referee Darcy who had charge of the game, and apparently saw fouls on the Andover side which were invisible to their opponents.

Lawrence kicked off and from a good pass by Shaw a corner resulted. Andover got away but a foul stopped them; they were soon back again and Doherty had the first shot of the match. Deyermund parted with a beauty drive but was ruled offside. Page got it and just missed by inches, while at the other end good work by Shaw forced a corner. Skea tried Rennie with a fine effort and the next advance of the Blue quintet was again ruled offside. The Andover half-backs were a trifle strong in kicking with the wind at their backs. A pretty run resulted in a fine center in front of Rennie, who attempted to fist the ball, but Page closed in and headed the leather into the net. Lawrence renewed their efforts and aided by innumerable free kicks got to the Andover end where Rhodes beat the entire defence with the equalizer. Half time found the teams tied.

Right at the start Rhodes got away and sent a good shot across the goalmouth, but none of his side could improve the occupation. Deyermund saved a hard shot from Shaw, while at the other end the Lawrence goal had a lucky escape, the ball from a scrimmage hitting the crossbar. Lawrence was now showing the greater dash and from a mixup in front of Andover's goal Lester came in and scored. Page was putting up a hard game to recover the lead and sent a pretty shot toward goal; Rennie was beaten but the ball struck the upright. Shortly after, Senior scored another goal for Lawrence from a good center, after a spirited attack on the Andover goal. Final score: Lawrence 3, Andover 1.

Andover—Deyermund; Rae and Jackson; Coleman, Downs and Black; Deyermund, Cairnie, Page, Doherty, and Skea.

Lawrence—Rennie; Turton and Holsworth; Roberts, Lester and Ashworth; Weston, Poole, Senior, Shaw, and Rhodes.

Thistles 7, Light Blues 2

Saturday afternoon on the playstead the Andover Thistles gave the Manchester Light Blues juniors a severe defeat in a junior league game. The victory of the locals was due to the splendid work of Macconnachie at center forward, who scored no less than five goals. He was in great form and simply irresistible. There was a fair crowd present.

Purdie kicked off for the Blues, but Anderson cleared and in a moment the ball was at the other end, Carnathan scoring the first goal a few minutes from the start. Even play followed until Macconnachie found opening, putting his side two up. The Blues attacked and finally Galloway scored, followed a few minutes later by the third goal for the Thistles, Macconnachie from a scrimmage in front of the goal cleverly netting the ball. The visitor pressed but the visitors' backs cleared. Not to be denied they returned the attack and Galloway scored their second goal after half an hour's play. The Thistles continued to have the upper hand, however, and scored twice before half time, Killacky and Macconnachie getting the goals, the Thistles leading 5 goals to 2.

The second half was more evenly contested and for the first fifteen minutes the Blues had as much of the play as their opponents, Gardner and McAllister showing some nice work, but they could not penetrate the Thistles' defence. The locals again put on the pressure and Macconnachie again got into prominence by scoring twice, giving no chance to save. The Blues never let up, however, and were attacking the Thistles' goal when the whistle sounded time.

Thistles—Croall; Eaton and Anderson; J. Lynch, Gorrie, Nico I; Killacky, Carnathan, Macconnachie, Caldwell, and Porter.

Light Blues—Wright; Heron and Stewart; Ryan, Dalton and Banks; Gardner, McAllister, Purdie, Galloway, and Banner.

Score, Thistles 7, Light Blue 2. Goals scored by Macconnachie 5, Killacky, Carnathan, Galloway 2.

INVASION OF POLAND ENDS IN DISASTER

Ausho-German Army Overcome by Russian Hordes

DISASTER BUT LITTLE LESS THAN COLOSSAL

Invaders Who Were Within Seven Miles of Warsaw Are Now More Than Fifty Miles Away, Broken and Disheartened—Dead, Wounded, Guns and Stores Abandoned After Furious Resistance For Seven Days—Russians Gain Advantage by Having Fresh Troops to Fill Depleted Ranks—German Wave of Conquest Believed to Have Passed—Frightful Carnage in Struggle For Possession of River Yser

The German host that so confidently rushed against Warsaw has been smashed by the Russian hordes. Slowly, but certainly, the last desperate attempts of the Germans and Austrians to hold their lines in southern Poland have been overcome by the tremendous new army corps that have been hurled against them.

Here and there, especially on one section of the Piltza river, the invaders are fighting stubbornly. But these scattered remnants of a once great army are merely forlorn hopes, for to the north and the south their comrades are rushing in mad haste toward the friendly German provinces of Posen and Silesia.

The situation in the blood-drenched regions of Belgium and France, where the wrestling armies are still obstinately striving for mastery, is of less importance than the terrific struggle in faraway Poland, where a death-blow to German hopes appears to have been delivered by the irresistible onslaught of the Russian hordes.

Berlin Admits Disaster
Hopeful dispatches from Petrograd were at first believed to be over-optimistic, but when the official statement came from Berlin that confirmed the retreat of the Germans and Austrians, it was no longer possible to doubt the Russian messages.

After the crushing defeat sustained by the Germans in their attempt to invade the Russian province of Suwalki, Berlin contented its worried populace by stating that the German troops were falling back for strategic purposes. The official bulletin from the German capital, read in the light of previous events, indicates that the disaster in Russian Poland is little less than colossal.

Days ago the Germans, who came within seven miles of Warsaw and who prophesied that within a few hours they would be revelling in the Polish capital, are now between fifty and seventy-five miles away, broken and disheartened, harried by the Cossacks and hearing in their ears the rumble of the advancing Russian infantry and artillery as they roll westward toward Posen.

Rolling Back in South
Undaunted by this crushing defeat, the Germans and Austrians further to the south have continued their furious resistance for seven days. Now they, too, are being rolled back, abandoning their dead and wounded, their guns and their stores as they seek safety in Silesia.

Lodz, the most important Polish city taken by the invaders, was captured several days ago by large bodies of Russian cavalry. But south of the Piltza river the invaders held their ground, checking charge after desperate charge that was hurled against them.

Evidently, however, the new Russian army that was gathered weeks ago has been able to reach the fighting zone, for both Russian and German dispatches tell about fresh troops that were being hurled across the Vistula. The overwhelming numbers told and the Austrians and Germans fell back to a second line, driven out of cities, towns, forests and swamps to a line running north and south from Radom.

Russians Have Fresh Troops
Radom fell on Tuesday after hours of furious fighting in which the losses were tremendous. But always were there fresh Russian troops to fill the depleted gaps in their lines, while the war-worn invaders had to fight on without hope of reinforcements.

Mile after mile the resistance was overcome and the great battle line has been battered westward until the Germans and Austrians are at places beyond the Russian boundary lines and nearly everywhere else they are being toppled backward.

In Galicia the Austrians are still holding their positions along the river San and Russian shells continue to screech above the battered forts at Przemyśl. Cholera has, it is reported, come to the aid of the Przemysl garrison and compelled the besiegers to slacken their assaults.

In East Prussia the occupation of the German offensive movement has been checked, while the Austrian advance through the Carpathians into Galicia has been stopped.

With winter here to aid the Russians, with the apparent whittling defeat of all the German offensive movements, and with the slackening of the German attack in Belgium and France, there is a confident feeling in London that the high tide of the German wave of conquest has passed and that they will hereafter, except for sporadic efforts, wage a defensive fight.

In Belgium and France the slackening of the assaults that have been so persistently hammered against the allies gives further proof that not even the war-mad general staff of the German army can blind their eyes to the terrific sacrifices that they have been making in their futile effort to smash their way to the French channel ports.

In the battle of Flanders alone, the struggle that has been waged for the possession of the river Yser in Belgium, the German reports state that the Belgians have lost no less than 10,000 men. English correspondents maintain that the Germans have lost 16,000 in killed and 30,000 in wounded and prisoners.

The losses of the French and British have been appalling, although the little Belgian army has faced the most staggering German attacks. Hardly in the history of warfare have such terrific losses been known.

Strain Less Severe on Allies
That the allies have been able to stand the strain better than the Germans is indicated in the latest official statements. Sixteen British warships have been patrolling the Belgian coast and so destructive has been their firing that the invaders appear to have abandoned their attempt to hack a way to Dunkirk between Newport and Dixmude. There are slight indications that they are massing to break a passage through Ypres, but north of this historic town the allies were able to gain ground.

Reinforcements and heavy guns are coming up to the aid of the Germans at Roulers, but the allies are now so strongly entrenched that it is believed the German assaults will fail.

An attempt to feel out the French defenses about Craonne resulted disastrously for the invaders, who lost 2000 men in one attack. Berlin maintains that some ground was gained in the forest of Argonne, while Paris reports that the French drew closer to the nearly isolated German post at St. Mihiel on the Meuse.

A move on Metz is now planned by the French in Alsace and Lorraine. At points along the battle line in these provinces the opposing forces are separated by so short a distance that the men are able to shout back and forth to each other.

WHITLOCK'S GREAT ACT

To Brand Whitlock, the American minister to Belgium, is due the credit for saving the cathedral and the art galleries, churches, theatres and public buildings in Antwerp during the recent bombardment of that city by the Germans.

When the Germans approached Antwerp Whitlock asked the German commander, General von Der Goltz, to spare the historic buildings. Thereupon von Der Goltz agreed to use his good offices in this respect. Whitlock would prepare maps for the German aeroplanists in order that they might direct the firing.

Henry W. Dietrich, the American consul general, then arranged a number of large maps on which were indicated the points which it was desired should be avoided by the German shells.

The German shooting was so skillful that the palace of justice was the only large government building struck during the bombardment. Two shells hit it, but they did only slight damage.

EMDEN'S EIGHTEENTH

Japanese Steamer the Latest Victim of German Cruisers

The German cruiser Emden sank the Japanese liner Kamegaki-Maru in the Indian ocean while the latter was proceeding to Singapore from Japanese ports.

The Emden up to the present time has to her credit the sinking of four British steamers, the capture of three other vessels flying the Union Jack, and the sinking of this Japanese steamer—eighteen in all.

The Emden continues to evade the pursuing column made up of twenty British and French warships and nearly the total reserve strength of the Japanese navy.

OKUMA WARNS JAPAN

Wants Bigger Army and Navy Prepared For Any Emergency

At a meeting of party leaders at Tokyo, Premier Okuma delivered an address urging the immediate expansion of the Japanese army and navy in order to enable the imperial government to act quickly in the event of an emergency.

It is expected that the new budget, to be introduced soon, will contain the largest military fund Japan has known in many years.

FOOD FOR BELGIANS

American Commission Ships Thousand Tons From England

The Dutch ship, Coblenz sailed from London for Rotterdam with the first 1000 tons of food purchased by the American commission for the relief of the Belgian people.

Coincidentally with the departure of this ship, the Belgian government announced that hereafter all movements for supplying Belgium with food must be conducted through the American commission, which is the sole body authorized by all governments concerned, both belligerents and neutrals, to perform this task.

The announcement was made because a group of wealthy Ostend residents, wishing to contribute $100,000, failed to get in touch with the commission until they had sailed to Washington.

All contributions and supplies will be under the protection of the American and Spanish diplomatic representatives, but the actual work of distribution will be in the hands of the American commission.

KROONLAND HELD UP

Probably Due to Question of Copper as Contraband Cargo

The detention of the Red Star liner Kroonland by a British warship at Gibraltar was reported to the state department at Washington by the American consul at Gibraltar.

The Kroonland, an American built and American owned vessel, was carrying a cargo of 1600 tons of copper from New York to Naples. No reason was given for her detention.

State department officials pointed out that, while copper has been placed on the conditional contraband list, Great Britain has no right to detain an American vessel headed for a neutral port, no matter what her cargo is.

BRINDILLA RELEASED

Oil Steamer Taken to Halifax Given Up by British Government

The British government, satisfied after an examination of the innocence of the destination of her cargo, has ordered the release of the American oil tank steamer Brindilla, which will be permitted to proceed to Alexandria. The question of the transfer of the vessel from the German to the flag of the United States will not be raised by the British government.

The Brindilla, which was carrying a cargo of illuminating oil, was seized by the British cruiser Carons and taken into Halifax on Oct. 19.

A GENERAL SURVEY OF THE WAR IN EUROPE

The enemies of Winston S. Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, are making the most of the futile attempt to relieve Antwerp and the consequent loss by internment in Holland of 2000 marines and naval volunteers.

Led by the London Morning Post and some members of parliament, the pack is in full cry, aiming evidently to humiliate Churchill and to tie his hands for the future.

Nearly 7,000,000 people in Belgium face famine unless they receive help from the outside at once.

The American minister to Belgium, Brand Whitlock, says that less than two weeks' supply of food remains in the cities, while conditions in the country districts are even worse. Though Germany has seized the food in some cities for her soldiers she still disclaims responsibility for feeding the Belgians.

It has been definitely learned that the cruiser Takachiho, reported at first to have been blown up by a mine, was torpedoed and sunk by the German torpedo boat S-90, which was subsequently beached to escape capture.

The crew of the Takachiho sang the Japanese national anthem as the vessel went down. The last sound heard as the cruiser disappeared was the voices of men.

The steamer Admiral Ganteaume was sunk by a mine just outside Boulogne harbor. About twenty or thirty persons were drowned owing to the panic which prevailed as the passengers were being transferred to the steamer Queen, which rushed to the assistance of the sinking vessel. Most of the passengers were peasants.

According to reports circulating in the Vatican, the pope is redoubling his efforts to find some solution to allow peace to be concluded by Christmas.

Advices received at Geneva confirm the report of the retirement of General Helmuth von Moltke as chief of the German general staff.

His resignation is said to have been offered because of poor health. His successor has not been appointed.

Germany's right to land troops in Canada, if possible, and thus secure at least a temporary foothold on the American continent, was upheld by Count von Bernadotte, German ambassador at Washington, who declared this would not be a violation of the Monroe doctrine.

Just outside the three-mile limit, her searchlights constantly illuminating the entrance to Honolulu harbor, the Japanese battleship Hizen is keeping patrol while anchored in the roads. The German warship Geir awaits the verdict of port officials as to how long she may remain in the harbor for repairs.

KILLED IN HIS HOME

Police Say Alleged Slayer Was Attentive to Victim's Wife

John Joseph, 41, was shot and killed in his home at Leominster, Mass. The police arrested John Roero, 35, on a murder charge.

According to the story told the police Roero has been attentive to Joseph's wife. Joseph quit his work earlier than usual. On going to his home he found Roero there, Roero is said to have fired the shot that killed Joseph as the latter was approaching him.

TO GIVE THANKS FOR BLESSINGS

President Officially Designates Nov. 26 as Holiday

AT PEACE WITH THE WORLD

Proclamation Dwells on Prosperous Situation in Which America Now Finds Herself, While Much of Rest of World is at War—Nation Stirred to Helpful Co-operation

President Wilson issued a proclamation designating Thursday, Nov. 26, as Thanksgiving day. It says in part:

It has long been the honored custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us as a nation. The year, while a year of discipline, because of the mighty forces of war and of change which have disturbed the world, also has been a year of special blessings for us.

It has been vouchsafed to us to remain at peace, with honor, and in some part to succor the suffering and supply the needs of those who are in want. We have been privileged by our own peace and self-control in some degree to study the counsels and shape the hopes and purposes of a day of fear and distress. Our people have looked upon their own life as a nation with a deeper comprehension, a fuller realization of their responsibilities as well as of their blessings, and a keener sense of the moral and practical significance of what their part among the nations of the world may come to be.

The hurtful effects of foreign war in their own industrial and commercial affairs have made them feel the more fully and see the more clearly their mutual interdependence upon one another and has stirred them to a helpful co-operation such as they have seldom practiced before. They have been quickened by a great moral stimulation. Their unmistakable ardor for peace, their earnest pity and disinterested sympathy for those who are suffering, their readiness to help and to think of the needs of others, has revealed them to themselves as well as to the world.

Our crops will feed all who need food; the self-possession of our people amidst the most serious anxieties and difficulties and the steadiness and resourcefulness of our business men will serve other nations as well as our own.

The business of the country has been supplied with new instrumentalities and the commerce of the world with new channels of trade and intercourse. The Panama canal has been opened to the commerce of the nations. The two continents of America have been bound in closer ties of friendship. New instrumentalities of international trade have been created which will be also new instrumentalities of acquaintance, intercourse and mutual service.

Never before have the people of the United States been so situated for their own advantage or the advantage of their neighbors or so equipped to serve themselves and mankind.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-sixth of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, and invite the people throughout the land to cease from their wonted occupations and in their several homes and places of worship render thanks to Almighty God.

GASOLINE IN SEWERS

Inquest Shows It Was Responsible For Death of Six Men

In his report of an inquest Judge Brown finds that the explosion at the East Boston pumping station, which caused the death of six men, was due to the presence of gasoline in sewers.

He recommends that all establishments using gasoline, naphtha and benzine in the cities and towns connected with the metropolitan sewer be compelled to install separating traps as is required by the city of Boston.

The State Campaign

The state campaign is practically closed; a few more rallies are likely to be held and many last-hour statements are yet to be considered, but it is doubtful if there are many people in the state whose minds are not made up regarding issues and men involved in next Tuesday's voting. It is clear to the close observer that the Republican party has gained materially over last year, and probably gained so much that it is a very close contest at the present moment, with the third party holding the balance of power as it did last year, but a balance of much less proportions than a year ago. The unfortunate phases of the campaign are entirely associated with some very narrow, cheap, and ultimately disastrous campaign issues. It would be much better if these issues had no bearing upon the voting next Tuesday, but instead have the contest settled entirely upon the merits of party principles and party candidates seeking endorsement.

Never has the Republican party had a stronger claim upon the voters of Massachusetts than at the present time, a claim fixed by every standard of estimating political claims. Two years of rule under the Democratic party has made trouble for the United States. The tariff legislation, upon which the industrial life of the country rests, has made business poorer, wheels turn more slowly, and pay envelopes less full than has been true of any similar period in the last twenty years. Industrial development has halted, and the confidence which the business of the country must have in the country's government has been lacking. The cost of government has increased by leaps and bounds until today the burden is greater upon the people among whom the taxes must be distributed than ever before in the history of this country. The whole scheme of government as worked out under Democratic leadership has been proved and found wanting, and blind are those who fail to see that this is an exact condition resulting from Democratic administration. Upon these actual conditions the Republican party may wisely go before the voters next Tuesday. If many have not yet realized that the conditions are serious and affect every individual in the country, they will be justified in adhering to present political affiliations, and many who know that such conditions exist will probably still cling to their long-established political faiths for one reason or another, but the average individual and the average man who is dependent upon his daily toil will find no difficulty whatever in determining that as government under Democratic control has not only failed to increase the prosperity of the country, but has steadily diminished that prosperity, he is justified in helping by his single vote to restore the better conditions given under Republican administration.

This test is particularly applicable in voting for a congressional candidate. To send from this manufacturing district a man who joins with the southern control of present tariff-making methods in the production of such a tariff law as has seriously handicapped every business within this district, would be a direct act by the voter who does such a thing, in support of the destruction of his own source of bread and butter. We don't need to consider a query of sectionalism, for that issue has been raised by another section of the country in connection with the problem of legislation for single sections of the country, or legislation that should be fair to all sections of the country. Fortunately this congressional district has a candidate who has had the courage to express wise and sane opinions in his last year as a minority member of the National Congress, and deeply fortunate will this district be by having him returned to a Congress in which he shall be a member of the majority, with power to remedy certain conditions which have so seriously affected the industrial life of this community. Congressman Rogers deserves, and will receive, a splendid endorsement of his first term as a Congressman from this important district, and Andover should do a big, generous part in this endorsement.

The state ticket problem is seriously muddled, but it is probable that the Republican party has never had a candidate to head its ticket who is more worthy of loyal support than Samuel W. McCall. His long record is one marked by highest credit, and is also one that promises much, if victory can come to the Republican party next Tuesday.

The contest for Representative has been quiet beyond that of almost any recent year. The attack by the Democratic candidate upon Mr. Bailey's absence from Boston last year is regrettable, for no one who knows Mr. Bailey, and even if he had no knowledge whatever of the conditions, would even suggest that he has ever been unfaithful to the demands of the service in which he has been enlisted. When it is known, as most people do know it, that Mr. Bailey had a sickness during the session of the Legislature that was probably as serious as he will ever have and still remain on this earth, the sort of campaigning which our young friend on the Democratic ticket has engaged in will not be considered very creditable to him. Let us hope that his childish innocence of affairs that are important from the standpoint of full-grown men may be considered the reason for his lapse in this connection.

Whatever the result may finally be, it will be made more effective if the voters vote. Let Andover do a big, full share by casting the largest vote in its history next Tuesday.

O Righteous Judge

O righteous Judge! We don't know when we have seen a more refreshing exhibition of good, old-fashioned horse sense than that credited to Judge Dubuque, in which he dealt so effectively one day last week with several boys who had been brought before him for malicious mischief. The first proposal was that the boys should be sent to the Lyman School, but when the case had been fully heard and conditions fully sifted, the Judge called the parents of the boys to him and told them that if the boys had been given the same kind of old-fashioned flogging that he and his associates had when he was a kid, they wouldn't have been before him at the present time.

This comment was followed up by a statement that if the fathers would go home, get some good, strong birch switches, and agree to give the boys first-class floggings, he would not sentence them to the Lyman School, but would let them be dealt with as they ought to be by parents who knew enough not to "spare the rod." The parents agreed, the children agreed, and it will be interesting to know of the final result. Not all the boys and not all the parents to whom this same sort of consideration might wisely be given are located in Plymouth County, or any other one county in Massachusetts.

Editorial Cinder

The writer is strongly convinced that it is a mistake to inject the suffrage issue into any partisan rally during the pending campaign, and he further believes that the voters are in no mood to pay any attention whatever to arguments that may be presented either for or against at this particular time. Those in charge of partisan rallies in town have, however, seemed to believe it wise to have speakers on one side of this question only and those at the Republican rally tonight will in this particular have an echo of one of the speeches given at the Democratic rally earlier in the week. At this particular moment the e are much more important questions for the consideration of the electorate as it already exists.

A. V. I. S. Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Andover Village Improvement Society for the election of officers, the reports of the secretary and treasurer, and other business will be held in the lower town hall, Monday evening, November 9, 1914, at 7.45 o'clock.

A vote of the members will be taken on the following important question:

Will the society vote to accept the care of Indian Ridge Woodland, and of the funds now in the hands of the trustees of said Woodland, as requested by the aforesaid trustees, provided permission to merge the two organizations be obtained from the Massachusetts Legislature?

Rev. M. W. Stackpole will speak on English Villages, after which there will be an opportunity for sociability.

A cordial invitation to attend is extended to everyone who is interested in the work of the society and the objects for which it stands, whether they be members or not.

EMMA J. LINCOLN,
Secretary

Abbott Village Coal Society

The first payment of the Abbott Village Coal Society will be taken this evening from 7 to 8.30 o'clock. Intending members may join up to the sixth week.

Guild Notes

The registration continues to increase, the enrolment to date being already greater than last year. New classes begun this week are dressmaking for the senior girls with Mrs. A. F. Hitchcock as instructor, and cooking for the intermediate girls with Miss Whiting. The business class under Miss Spaulding is proving very popular. The new text-books were used for the first time last Wednesday night and the lessons were so interesting that as one pupil expressed it "the two hours seemed like one." The sloyd classes will begin next Wednesday and Thursday nights under the same instructor, Winfield Lunt.

Fourteen girls of fourteen and fifteen years of age, forming the newly organized Intermediate department, met last Friday night to form a club. This organization will be known hereafter as the K. T. club, and the officers chosen were: President, Nellie McLeish; vice-president, Gertrude Hilton; secretary, Anna Winters. The first social activity of this club is a Halloween party, held in the Guild tonight. The senior girls and boys are planning a Halloween party for Saturday night. An appeal is made for games for the use of our junior boys. Puzzles also will be of use. Anything in this line will be gratefully received.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Fifty Years of Married Life Celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. Adam S. Lindsay Wednesday Evening

Fifty years ago Wednesday, October 28th, Mr. and Mrs. Adam S. Lindsay of Washington avenue were married in Arbroath, Scotland, by Rev. John Robertson of the East Free church. The fiftieth anniversary of the event was fittingly observed Wednesday evening with an informal gathering of the family and relatives. A few of the couple's intimate friends called early in the evening and offered their congratulations, but the celebration was the occasion of a pleasant family party. The parlor and sitting-room were tastefully decorated with autumn leaves, cut flowers, and streamers of gold and blue. Shortly after eight o'clock when all had congratulated Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay, the company, numbering about fifty, joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne," after which two purses of gold, one from their sons and daughters and one from the relatives, were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay. They were also the recipients of other gifts from friends. Refreshments were served by Caterer Rhodes and the evening was spent in a most enjoyable manner, the musical talent of the family furnishing a splendid program of songs and part songs, Mr. Lindsay himself contributing a solo. The program concluded with the singing of "Home, Sweet Home," by the whole company, which hoped that they might also be present at the sixtieth anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay came to Andover thirty years ago and Mr. Lindsay secured a position as an overseer for the Smith & Dove Company, which he held for a number of years. At the present time he is employed in the factory of the Tyer Rubber Company. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay are enjoying good health and are happy with their family of five sons and four daughters, seven of whom were present: George M. of Melrose, Robert S. of Tewksbury, Alexander of Reading, William N. of New Haven, Conn., and Rowland H. of Andover; and Miss Margaret W. and Mrs. Louis D. Cook of New Bedford, Mrs. Harvey Ferrier of Beverly, and Miss Annie S. of this town. Mr. Lindsay has two brothers—David S. of Summer street and Rev. Robert S. of Lincoln, Neb.; and three sisters—Mrs. Elizabeth Dundas and Miss Minnie Lindsay of this town, and Mrs. Mary Gillespie of Pasadena, Cal. There are also nine grandchildren and six of these were present at the observance. Mrs. Lindsay's sisters all settled in the west except Mrs. Mary Neish, who resides here.

Mr. Lindsay is a great lover of music and was formerly a member of the Andover Brass Band. He also was leader of the Free church choir and showed great interest with the children, training them for the performance of several "kinderspiels." The best wishes of the community go with Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay in the observance of their golden wedding.

Abbott Academy Notes

The school has shown much interest in the Red Cross Relief work, and during the last two weeks nearly every evening at recreation time the girls have been busy sewing.

Every afternoon there is basketball practice for the Bradford-Abbott game. The finals in the tennis tournament were played on Saturday afternoon, the winner being Miss Ruth Ottman. On Tuesday evening the annual Halloween masquerade and dance was held in Davis Hall.

Much enthusiasm for star-gazing was aroused by the lecture last Saturday afternoon on Familiar Stars given by Miss Annie J. Cannon of the Harvard Observatory. Miss Cannon showed many interesting photographs of the stars and of the moon and explained the marvelous results of the use of photography in modern astronomy. After the lecture Miss Cannon also told something of her own remarkable work in cataloguing the stars.

The school was glad to have one of its trustees, the Rev. Mr. Oliphant of Methuen, at the Sunday evening meeting.

On the 8th and 9th of November, Miss Annie Beecher Scoville, who represents Hampton Institute, is to be the guest of the school. Friends of Miss Scoville in the school and in town are looking forward with eagerness to her lectures, which are always interesting. On Sunday evening, the 8th, she will speak on Hampton's Work for Racial Peace; the subject of her lecture on Monday evening will be "When Shakespeare Came to London."

The Liszt Lecture Recital

That was a deeply interested audience that listened to John Orth Thursday afternoon at the South church vestry. Mr. Orth was a pupil of Franz Liszt, and as a young student fell under the spell of that extraordinary man, and his enthusiasm still glows with the inspiration he received in Weimar, where he was a fellow-student and worshipper with a gifted group of musicians. It is his delight to tell of his great master and to interpret his compositions, and he quoted with gratification the words of a young hearer among the boys of the School of Mechanic Arts, who wrote in the school paper that Mr. Orth had "piloted them through heaven for an incomparably delightful half-hour."

His personal reminiscences, of his early struggles to get to Liszt, and his rapture at being invited to stay as his pupil, were of great interest, and his comments on Liszt as a man, a teacher and a composer were vivid and illuminating. Mr. Orth places Liszt in the highest rank as a composer, and believes that he is just entering on his true recognition as a composer. Mr. Orth believes that since the time of Bach we have never been without at least two composers destined to immortality, and his prophecy for the future was interesting. The present writers whom he singled out as of permanent worth are Max Reger, Richard Strauss, and Debussy, and he claims the support of such musicians as Kneisel and others in this belief.

After an hour's charming talk, enlivened by anecdotes and humor, he gave a short program of Liszt's compositions, which was not the least delightful part of a singularly interesting afternoon's entertainment.

The Liebestraum which opened the program Mr. Orth ranks as the most beautiful of modern pianoforte compositions. And to elucidate its significance he read the following poem both in German and in English:

"Oh love, while love is thine to give,
While true love yet remains to thee,
The hour comes when at the grave
Thou'lt stand and weep full bitterly.
Let kindness glow within thy breast,
Let love's bright flame unfailing burn
While still another faithful heart
To thine beats warmly in return.
And hold him dear through weal and woe
Who bares his inmost soul to thee;
Make every hour with gladness bright
And let not one hour saddened be.
Guard well thy tongue, seal fast thy lips,
The angry words unspoken keep.
'Oh God! I meant no ill'—But he Will seek a place apart to weep."

The difficult "Feux Follets," "Consolation," and the composer's two polonaises completed the program. The polonaise in E, familiar to concert-goers, was played with fine vigor and rhythm, and Mr. Orth showed the true Liszt fervor in his splendid fortissimo. He makes a curiously sparing use of the pedal.

A word ought to be said of the large and unusual audience. The tickets were made low in price on purpose to bring in some who do not often have first-rate musical treats, and it was pleasant to see the room crowded to capacity with an audience of young and old, rich and poor, all eagerly attentive to every word and note. In closing, Mr. Orth expressed his gratification at the size and appreciativeness of his audience, and it must be a well-merited joy to him to have given us all so much pleasure.

The program follows:
Liebestraum, Love Dream in A flat
Polonaise in C minor
Feux Follets, Fireflies
Consolation, in E
Polonaise in E

Fire Causes Heavy Loss

Last Saturday forenoon an alarm from Box 42 called the fire department to Bartlett H. Hayes' house off Phillips street, where a bad fire was in progress. The whole department responded at the first alarm and made good time, but found the roof ablaze and the attic full of smoke and fire. The ladders were soon raised and the roof fire quickly put out, but the men had a harder job with the attic. It is thought an electric wire caused the fire as one of the men received a shock on entering the room. A large hole had to be cut in the roof and the plastering torn away from one of the upstairs rooms before a complete job could be done. After an hour's work the fire was out, but the damage by smoke and water was considerable. The Phillips Academy boys were early on the scene and succeeded in getting practically everything out of the house before any damage had been done to the furniture. The rooms below the attic were little hurt and the furnishings were quickly replaced after the fire had been put under control.

New Voters Registered

At the last registration of voters held on Saturday evening thirty-five more names were added to the voting list. In all ninety names of voters have been put on the list as compared with seventy-five last year. The following is the list of names: William J. Abbott, Philip A. Crowley, Albert Cruikshank, Charles W. Davis, Roy Dearborn, Clarence Delaney, William H. Downs, Clarence B. Eastwood, John J. Flemming, Jacob Glowacki, George R. Grover, John W. Grout, Thomas Hall, John W. Henderson, Frank A. Kennedy, Frank Kemnitz, Ernest C. King, Harry F. Lovell, Philip A. Mooney, John Muldowney, Henry F. Newman, Edward G. Newman, Herbert E. Nowell, Soren E. Olsen, Lyman J. Roby, William M. Ross, Philip W. Thomson, Lester N. Towne, James F. Welch, Charles H. Weymouth, Harold S. Wilkins, William M. Wood, Jr., Ernest Zecchini, Edward B. Davis, Raymond Metcalf.

Girls' Friendly Entertainment

The Girls' Friendly Society of Christ church held a most successful Halloween party on last Monday evening. The St. Paul's branch of North Andover was invited and there was present a witch who came from nowhere and vanished into thin air. Many fortunes were told and many games and tricks enjoyed under the guidance of the entertainment committee and their skilled leader, Mrs. Douglas Crawford. The following members served on the committee: Misses Westcott, Taylor, Sellers, Killacky, and Greene.

Death

In Andover, October 24, Clarence W. Berry, at the age of 20 years. Burial in the Spring Grove Cemetery.

Wedding

TURNER-HACKETT

A wedding of considerable interest to Andover and North Reading people took place last Saturday afternoon at 6.30 o'clock when Miss Annie S. Hackett of this town was united in marriage to Harvey G. Turner of North Reading. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James King, pastor of the Methodist church of Ballardvale, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties, at the home of the bride's parents on South Main street.

The bride made a charming picture in a beautiful white crepe de chine wedding dress cut en train, and wearing a veil caught up by rosebuds. Her bouquet was bride roses. She was attended by Miss Carrie Turner, sister of the groom. The best man was Roy Turner, cousin.

After the ceremony a reception was held to which about one hundred guests were invited, the newly-wedded couple being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Hackett, Mr. and Mrs. Turner, and the bridal attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner left later in the evening for a wedding tour, after which they will be at home to friends in their newly-erected house in North Reading.

Both young people are well known here and in North Reading. Mr. Turner is a graduate of the Reading High School and is Master of North Reading Grange. He is a most successful farmer in his native town. Mrs. Hackett is a Punchar High graduate and was employed in the office of the Tyer Rubber Company until August of this year. She is extremely popular with the young people of this town and of North Reading and her many friends join in wishing her all kinds of happiness in her married life.

Christ Church Notes

The regular meeting of the Girls' Friendly Society will be held in the parish house on Monday at 7.30 p.m. St. Catherine's Guild will gather as usual on Tuesday afternoon at 3.45 o'clock.

On Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Woman's Guild will hold its second meeting of the season in the rector's study. The various officers have signified their readiness to serve and the organization is starting on effective work in parish life.

The address on Sunday at 5 o'clock will be "Religion in History."

Those who attended the service last Sunday afternoon were well repaid by the music as sung by the choir. The organist, Mr. Michelson, has written a Te Deum which is now in print and which will be sung as a future date in Christ church.

Births

In Andover, October 23, a son to Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Davison of Maple avenue.

ROUSING DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Large Attendance of Local Democrats Hear Many Able Speakers Discuss the Democratic Administration. Governor Unable to Attend.

Rarely has the town hall seen such a large and enthusiastic rally as that held on Wednesday evening under the auspices of the Democratic Town Committee. There were about 350 people present, including a number of women, and the large attendance is attributed to the fact that Governor Walsh and ex-Mayor John F. Fitzgerald were advertised as speakers. There was much disappointment, however, when it was learned that neither of these distinguished men was to appear.

There was a long list of speakers and from 7.45 until 10.30 the audience was entertained with brilliant bursts of oratory, as well as more plain and ordinary appeals for votes. Each speaker presented his views as to why the entire Democratic ticket should be elected and urged the voters to stand by President Wilson by endorsing all the candidates of the party.

One of the speakers, who by courtesy of the Democratic Town Committee was allowed to address the gathering, was Mrs. Thomas Pelham Curtis of Boston, who spoke on the "ballot for women." She was very entertaining and her speech was heartily applauded. She spoke in part as follows:

"We are told that a woman's place is the home, and that she should not mix in politics. This, of course, is entirely overlooking the hundreds of thousands of women who have no home or who are forced out of their home by the necessity of earning their daily bread, but conceding that the happiest and the usual place for woman is the home we still feel, more for that reason perhaps, than for any other, that she should have the vote. It is all very well to say that the home should not enter into politics, but we cannot prevent politics entering the home."

"When we remember the numerous laws that are passed connected with pure food, with sanitation, with street cleaning, with schools and all those other phases of life, that each woman is bound to come in contact with, we can no longer expect the woman in the home to keep entirely aloof from politics. That is already impossible. Every time she turns the water faucet in her home, she turns on a stream of politics. Even the milk is subject to regulation of the Legislature. Now this is not outside the home, but inside the baby. By all this I do not mean to say that women by possessing the vote could bring about ideal conditions along all these lines of which I have spoken, but I do mean to say that their judgment on such matters is invaluable and that their voices should count, and I mean further to say that the very men who are interested in keeping the streets dirty, the schools poorly sustained, the food and milk supplies impure, are also the very men who would rather see anything in the world come to pass than that women should be given the vote."

"Therefore, my conclusion is that because woman's place is the home she should have the vote to represent that home and to protect that home, if for no other reason."

The first speaker of the evening was M. A. Sullivan, a lawyer of Lawrence. After being introduced by the chairman of the committee, Patrick J. McGovern, he said:

"Thomas J. Boynton, as attorney general during the past year, has refused to be awed by corporate greatness, or impressed by corporate wealth. In the interpretation and administration of the laws there are many opportunities to twist the law this way and that, and to resort to technicalities. Where some attorneys-general might have strained the law in the interest of big corporations, and have neglected the cases which bore on the wealthy, Thomas J. Boynton has looked at law matters from a human angle and has always been concerned with obtaining the greatest good for the greatest number. The following are examples:

"A large corporation for years pol-

CIVIC LEAGUE MEETING

Great Address by Albert G. Bryant of Boston on the Last War and the Red Cross

The citizens of Andover had an opportunity last Sunday evening to listen to a stirring talk on "The Last War" and "The Work of the Red Cross Society," given at the meeting of the "Andover Christian Civic League" in the Baptist church. Albert G. Bryant of the World's Peace Foundation, of Boston, was the speaker of the evening.

Mr. Bryant spoke briefly of the Red Cross society, telling of its foundation and growth, and activities in different localities in times of trial. He classed the women of this organization, who have gone to Europe to relieve suffering at the front, as modern saints.

He then spoke at greater length on the present European war and gave his hearers a new insight into the conditions there, the futility of trying to place the blame, the great responsibility of this neutral nation, and the enormous cost of war to future civilization.

He stated his absolute unwillingness to try to place the blame on any one nation, because this blaming spirit if national in extent would not allow the United States at the time of mediation to be of any use whatever. He showed the opportunity of the United States, and the great responsibility attached to that opportunity.

In speaking of the enormous cost of war Mr. Bryant gave some statistics. The war debt of France before the present conflict broke out was sixty-two thousand million dollars. There is in the world only eleven thousand million dollars in gold. This condition means that the war indemnities of nations is on paper and likely to stay there, because there is no possibility of getting it off. So the laborers of nations have to chip in and pay interest on an enormous debt. It was suggested to the audience that the creditors of nations might have influence in the policies of nations, and might not be disinclined to enlarge their loans on such a good security as the mortgaging of the citizens of those nations for three or four generations.

But he claimed that the money cost was not the important cost of the war. In illustrating this point Mr. Bryant told of the civilization of the European nations, of the generations of minds that have given themselves to the solution of making things move smoothly in the congested population of these nations. After this terrible war the conditions will be such that the widows and orphans and others left over will have to struggle so hard to maintain life that individuals will of necessity think more of themselves than of their community, their country, or of the welfare of the world. This is the real cost of war; the lower standard of manhood and womanhood, the inestimable loss to civilization.

As Abraham Lincoln clearly showed in his Gettysburg speech that the purpose of the Civil War was to establish an indisputable Union of States and continue a nation of freemen, so Mr. Bryant clearly showed the purpose of the present European war. It is not that any one nation shall gain territory or advantages, or ruling power. It is that it shall be the last war, that the voice of the people shall be heard, that the dominance of the military spirit shall be destroyed, that there shall be international disarmament, an international court and police system.

"Hay Foot, Straw Foot"

Referring to the query in the Townsman of October 2, as to the use of the above phrase in the drilling of the Andover recruits of 1861, as a substitute for "left foot, right," several replies, oral and written, have been received. One veteran remembers its use in the Readville camp. Others recall the fact or the tradition of the phrase in the time of the civil war. But there is no evidence whatever that it was used first in Andover, or as for that matter, in the civil war. All that "G. S. M." said in the Transcript query—I have since learned that those initials stand for a well-known Andover citizen—was that the "Andover recruits of 1861" used the expression. The editorial answer in the Transcript mentioned the "legend" that the farmers of the Revolutionary Army were said to have made the drill easy by binding wisps of hay and straw on their respective feet. In this same line our former citizen, Judge George H. Poor, writes more fully, and I will append his interesting letter.

"I do not know who originated the phrase 'hay foot, straw foot,' said to have been used by the Andover volunteers of 1861, but I am quite sure I heard it before those days. For a long period after the Revolution we had a very active and comprehensive militia system which enforced military drill upon practically every able-bodied man between certain ages at certain periods, and as our population was then largely rural and agricultural I think the phrase was coined by some humorous young farmer. It evidently caught the public ear, for it persisted until I heard it in my boyhood days, though the militia system had changed to the voluntary form, practically as in vogue today, before I was old enough to observe such matters.

"The old system which was compulsory gave us many captains, majors, colonels, prominent and worthy citizens, quite a few of whom some of us elders remember. Our modest neighboring town of Boxford had, I recall, a general. Andover had at least two companies of citizen soldiers under the old militia law, for I find on record the gift of the field at the corner of Main and Salem streets from Major Blunt to Phillips Academy in which he reserves to the second company of Andover militia the right to train there for all time."

This therefore is doubtless the conclusion of the whole matter that in ancient time, perhaps as far back as the Revolution, or not long after, the farmer militiamen made fun of each other, for their occasional or alleged awkwardness in learning to march by advising them to tie hay or straw around their legs—or possibly doing it for them. Such a grotesque thing would easily pass into a bit of traditional slang which lasted until the memorable days of 1861, and the memory of that tradition until 1914! But it is certain that our old Andover cannot add to its many laurels of patriotism, education, business ability any claim to the invention of the "hay foot, straw foot" device. Nor will we admit for a single moment that the farmers of our ancient and honored town were any more ignorant or awkward than their soldier contemporaries in other towns, so as to need any such help!

P. S. Since the above was in type, Judge Poor sends a reference to the "Vest Pocket Essay" on Carthage in the Boston Herald of Wednesday, saying that "this puts hay foot, straw foot back to the time of Hannibal" for the accompanying picture of Hannibal crossing the Alps with his army has the motto, "Hay foot, straw foot. Get in step there!" But it is not proved that the picture was made in the time of the Punic Wars, and certainly the order, if given, would have been in stately Latin, to match Cato's "Delenda est Carthago!"

CLARENCE BERRY

Monday afternoon the funeral of Clarence Berry, late of 32 Maple avenue, took place at the family home at 2 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles W. Henry, rector of Christ Episcopal church and were attended by the family and friends.

Clarence Berry was a young man who was held in high esteem by his many friends throughout his home town. He worked for a number of years at the Tyler Rubber Company. He passed away Saturday morning after an illness of several months.

The bearers were: Frank Muldowney, George Eastwood, Henry Porter, and Joseph Daley. Interment was in Spring Grove cemetery.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Berry; two brothers, Ralph and John Berry, and one sister, Miss Caroline Berry.

The floral tributes included: Wreath, from family; spray of pinks, Charles Adams; spray of pinks, Mr. and Miss Coutts; spray of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Baker; spray of pinks, Miss Agnes Scott; spray of chrysanthemums, Mr. and Mrs. Butterworth; pillow, cutting room of Tyler Rubber Co.; large spray of chrysanthemums, from shopmates; spray of chrysanthemums, Frank Muldowney; spray of chrysanthemums, Miss Heffernan, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Riddoch, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Jackson; spray of chrysanthemums, Mrs. John Adams; spray of chrysanthemums, Rev. Charles W. Henry; bouquet of pinks, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzgerald of Gardiner, Me.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness during the illness and death of our son and brother, Clarence W. Berry. Also, for the floral tributes, especially to the employees of the Tyler Rubber Company.

ABBOTT VILLAGE

Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce of Cuba street spent Sunday with friends in Melrose.

Mr. Cunio with his two sons of Woburn visited at the home of his sister, Mrs. Timothy McCarthy, on Red Spring road, recently.

Miss Annie McCrossin of Stevens street is again seriously ill at her home.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hayes of The Bronx, New York, last Friday. Mrs. Hayes was Miss Violet Anderson of Brechin Terrace.

Mrs. Wirtzberger has returned to her home after spending two weeks at the Lawrence General Hospital. She is recovering from an operation performed there.

Mrs. James Adams and daughter Mary of Lynn visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. William Haddon, on Main street, this week.

I. O. G. T. Notes

At the last meeting of Abbott Village lodge the following officers were chosen for the winter term: Chief Templar, George Keith; Past Chief Templar, Joseph Keith, Sr.; Secretary, Jennie Crook, reelected; V. T., Mrs. Peter Campbell; F. S., John Keith; Treasurer, Hugh Moore; M., Joseph Keith, Jr.; Reg., Mary Aitken; S. O. J. W., Robert Auchterlonie. These will be installed next Monday evening by Lodge Deputy Mrs. Henninger, when refreshments will be served. The good of the order for that meeting is in charge of Joseph Keith, who never fails to provide an entertaining program.

The lodge will visit North Andover lodge in a body tonight; all members are urged to be present.

JUVENILE LODGE

The Pride of Andover juvenile lodge was reorganized for the winter months by James Craig and Mrs. Henninger, assisted by Robert Auchterlonie. The children will meet next Wednesday evening in the village hall. Their regular meetings will in future be held from 6.30 to 7.45, just before the regular meetings of the adult lodge, on Monday evenings. All Good Templars will be welcome to attend.

Concert Realized Fifty Dollars

Last Friday evening a very successful concert was held in Abbott Village hall, the object being to raise money for the Red Cross Society. The committee in charge was composed of these men, all former residents of Arbroath, Scotland: Alex. Anderson, George Petrie, William Rae, Daniel Low, Alex. Valentine, and H. Fairweather. Barnett Rogers was chairman. The sum of fifty dollars was realized and has been forwarded to the provost of Arbroath.

The artists, with one exception, were natives of or their parents came from Arbroath, and all who took part gave their services. After the concert dancing was enjoyed by many who remained. Miss Mary Black and Robert Williams played for the dancing. The program:

Song, "The Song that will live forever"
Miss Annie McEwan
Reading, "The Price of War"
J. MacDonald
Song, "The Rose of Allendale"
Miss Alice Coutts
Song, "Just like being at home"
H. Fairweather
Song, "Jessie's dream"
Miss Mary Porter
Dance, "Sailor's Hornpipe"
Daniel Low
Song, "Marguerite"
Miss Annie McEwan
Reading, "The face on the bar-room floor"
J. MacDonald
Song, "I love you"
Miss Alice Coutts
Song, "A wee bit land"
Miss Mary Porter
Dance, "Highland Fling"
Daniel Lowe
Song, "The wee house"

Public School Notes

Miss Mary Riley, who resigned her position in the Indian Ridge school recently, left this week for her new position in Lawrence. Miss Gertrude Farrington has been appointed to take her place.

Several members of the school committee visited the Bailey school last week and report that no damage was done to the building above the first floor. That, however, had to be replaced with several new floor beams. The school reopened for work this week.

An exhibition of fancy reed baskets is being shown at the school committee room. The baskets were made by the High School class in basketry. A most pleasing array of different shapes and designs awaits those who care to see them.

Miss Edith Johnson has recovered sufficiently from her recent illness to be able to resume her duties at the North school.

Miss Mary Bridge of the North school has been ill this week. Miss Helena Dooley of Lawrence substituted.

The teachers' association met last night at the home of Principal Hamblin on Chestnut street to perfect plans for the coming year.

The school census is being taken of pupils between five and sixteen years of age.

P. A. Notes

Bartlett H. Hayes has sent a letter of thanks to the Phillips boys for their able assistance at the fire which damaged his property last Saturday.

Last Sunday evening at the regular meeting of the Society of Inquiry, Morgan P. Noyes gave a very interesting talk on "Our Three Great Responsibilities." The meeting was a large one but it merited an even larger attendance. While at Yale Mr. Noyes took an active part in the Y. M. C. A. of the college and was the Academic secretary of this organization. His inside knowledge of the situation at Yale and also at other colleges made him all the better qualified to speak on this subject.

"Jack" Wiley, P. A. '13, is playing center on the Yale varsity. While at Andover he played on the football team and was the captain of the varsity baseball team.

luted the beautiful Neponset river, with the acquiescence of previous attorneys-general. Mr. Boynton has forced the building of a filter. For years the Haverhill Gas Co. resisted the order of the gas commission for 80 cent gas. With Mr. Boynton's advent they have capitulated. Mr. Boynton won the best cases in the supreme judicial court, which have brought the tax-dodging foreign corporations to time.

"It is to be noticed that all these corporations have capitulated without a fight, realizing that at last there is a stalwart servant of the people in the chair of the attorney-general. Re-elect Thomas J. Boynton."

Following Mr. Sullivan, John E. Cuddy, candidate for senator, was the next speaker. He told of his efforts in securing the nomination for the office and what he proposed to do should the voters send him to the Legislature next term. He was given a hearty reception.

William J. Cronin, the Democratic candidate for Representative, was introduced and he spoke at length on the general situation from a Democratic standpoint. He then launched forth with his claims for recognition by the voters and urged everyone to stand by him in his fight for the office. He compared his qualifications with those of his opponent, and wished to impress upon those present the fact that he could serve the people with a far higher degree of efficiency than the Republican nominee. Although not directly predicting his election, he said that he had made it a point in life to reach the goal in everything he sought after, that his ambition was to serve the people of this district in the Legislature and to check this record would be to his disadvantage as well as unfortunate for the town. He quoted several of the bills of the last Legislature which were voted against by Mr. Bailey and called attention to the fact that the latter was absent from the sessions of that body a large part of the time. At the close of his speech he was given a hearty applause.

John Joseph O'Connor of Lowell, candidate for Congressman, spoke very humorously and had his audience in a happy frame of mind for the more serious things which he uttered. He compared his qualifications with those of his opponent on the Republican side and offered himself as the simon-pure candidate for congressional honors. He appealed strongly to the working class and promised if elected to look out for their interests.

Thomas F. Walsh, a brother of Governor Walsh, was one of the most interesting speakers of the evening. He presented the Democratic side of the ticket from all angles and wished to impress upon the voters that the only salvation for the state was the return of the entire ticket to office.

Judge Thomas P. Riley delivered an oration which showed that a great deal of thought and time had been spent in its preparation. He gave extracts of United States history from the first Betsy Ross flag up to the present time, mentioning at intervals that every great event during that time had been accomplished through the efforts and advice of the Democratic party.

State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield spoke interestingly of the work of his office. He told of how the big interests had been ignored in the sale of bonds, how the man of moderate means had been given a chance and how a vast amount of money had been saved by him for the taxpayers.

George H. Pope, State Auditor, was the last speaker of the evening. He discussed the duties of his particular department and compared his efforts with those of his predecessors.

The St. Mary's drum corps furnished music prior and during the rally.

Communication

Editor Townsman:—

In my communication of last week, in the sentence in which I intend to say that if elected "I would forget that I was a Progressive, so far as would be practical, and try to represent the best moral and economic interests of the Town and State," the word "economical" appears. As it was a slip of the pen and only conveys part of the idea I wished to express, I am asking you to make the correction. I wish to be thoroughly understood in my statements.

AT THE THEATRES

BOSTON THEATRES

HOLLIS STREET

Coming to the Hollis Street theatre on Monday next for a limited engagement which will include the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, is Lydia Lopokova in "The Young Idea." The names of most American stage stars are well known to the reading public either from a succession of annual visits at the head of their own companies, or, in case of ones newly elevated to stellar honors, by a prior prominent association with important productions. It is not strange therefore that the name of Lydia Lopokova should come to many with an unfamiliar sound, for never until now has it appeared upon a playbill in any other capacity than that of a dancer. Lydia Lopokova is the first star who has ever become such in the first part in which she has ever appeared and that she has done so, under a manager so experienced and expert as Harrison Grey Fiske, is a remarkable tribute to her personality, magnetism, inherent dramatic ability and future promise.

A splendid company, including several stage artists well known to Boston, is said to surround the new star.

WILBUR

A striking feature of "The Road to Happiness," now in its eighth triumphant week at the Wilbur theatre, Boston, and one which is thoroughly enjoyed by the host of playgoers who throng that beautiful playhouse, is the curious likeness which exists between William Hodge's character of Jim Whitman in the play and the real Abraham Lincoln in the days of his youth. Hodge as young Whitman in "The Road to Happiness" is the same breed. He is a struggling young carpenter and jack-of-all-trades. He studies law by his kerosene lamp. He masters all difficulties. He has a love romance as odd and unique as was Lincoln's own. He has the same native humor, the same Yankee shrewdness, the same deep-rooted honesty of purpose and belief in the triumph of the right. Like the youthful Lincoln still, he whips the village bully. Only here Whitman succeeds without the aid of his fists, using only his wits. The bully in the case is the village squire, who seeks to disgrace an innocent girl, to whose rescue Whitman comes, thus involving his own love romance. This dramatic story only helps to bring out into strong relief the youthful Lincoln-like qualities and characteristics of Jim Whitman as portrayed by the inimitable Hodge. It is no wonder "The Road to Happiness" is enjoying such a pronounced popularity.

BOSTON THEATRE

The fact that the Boston theatre is offering the only grand opera to be heard in New England the coming winter is being rapidly taken advantage of by the public. The fifth week of the season is to open with the company's first presentation of "La Traviata," familiar in its dramatic form as "Camille." The opera will be given on both Monday evening and Wednesday afternoon. The remarkable reception given Ciccolini for his work in "La Boheme" has led to a demand for another presentation of this ever popular Puccini opera, which will be the bill for Tuesday evening, Ciccolini again appearing, with Millo Pico and a strong cast as before. "Faust" will be the opera for Wednesday and Friday evenings. "Un Ballo in Maschera," the opera which has its unique setting in Boston, is to be given on Thursday evening. Another performance which always commands attention and satisfies lovers of dramatic music is "Tosca," to complete the week on Saturday evening. Next Sunday evening the customary popular concert will be given by the principal artists of the company at prices of 25c, 50c, and 75c. The artists to appear are Miriam Ardini, Alice Gentle, Attilio di Crescenzo, Luigi Mainiero and Joseph Florian.

PLYMOUTH

Cohan and Harris' latest success, "Wanted $22,000", will begin its last week at the Plymouth theatre Monday night. This amazing play by A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton is the biggest hit of the Boston season. Not in years has Boston seen such a remarkable play.

Cohan and Harris have given the piece three beautiful stage settings. The cast, an all-star organization selected for Boston and New York only, comprises besides Mr. Glendinning and Miss Kelley, Richard Sterling as Robert Caswell, the insurance agent; William Courtleigh as the theatrical manager Gilmore; Forrest Robinson as the father, James Howard; Harold Russell in the role of the bank teller, Byrne; Hazel Lowry as Elsie Howard; Frances Wright as Mary; Isabel Garrison in the part of Mrs. Howard; George Wright, Jr., as Stephen Bingham, and Harold Grau in the role of Jim.

Matinees are played on Thursday and Saturday. Special attention is given to all mail orders made payable to Fred E. Wright.

Boston & Maine Changes

After the first of November a number of important changes will be made on the Boston and Maine Railroad, largely affecting those who travel back and forth on the trains every day. The single fares will remain the same between all points, but the fifty-ride ticket rates will be increased. No more ten-ride tickets will be issued except from Reading.

The fifty-ride rate to Boston from Andover will be $23.00; to North Lawrence the fifty-ride rate will be $4.00; to South Lawrence, $3.00; to North Andover, $5.00; to Ballardvale, $3.00; to Haverhill, $11.00, and to Lowell, $12.00.

The rates on the monthly tickets largely used by students and those who work in Boston, remain the same for the present.

Used Local Lumber

An interesting fact in connection with the consumption of timber for railroad tie purposes is that 79 per cent of the amount expended by the New Haven for railroad ties last year went for ties produced along the lines of the road. The percentage of native ties used on the New Haven is unusually high for a railroad in this part of the country. The amount of railroad income which in a year finds its way back to the people in this manner is considerable. Figures of the road's purchasing department show that last year out of $1,758,023 spent for ties of all kinds there was thus distributed along the company's lines the sum of $1,374,160. This money went to farmers and owners of small woodlots as well as to local lumber companies, payments for ties running all the way from $1.25 to $10.00.

"MADE IN AMERICA"

Push For Prosperity!

Every man who is out of work in America would have employment if the people of the United States confined their purchases for the next few months to goods made here.

When you buy ask where the articles are made. Reject foreign goods.

Commodities made by American labor ought to be good enough for American citizens.

LAWRENCE

Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Reed and daughter have removed to Somerville where they will make their home.

Mrs. Waldo H. Sanborn and son Alan, and Alan Glenn of Olive street have returned from a trip to Providence, R. I.

George A. Mellen gave an interesting talk on "Making a Newspaper" before the Men's League of the United Congregational church Monday night.

The Ladies' Union of Trinity Congregational church will hold a rummage sale at 134 Lawrence street today and tomorrow. The proceeds will be devoted to carrying on the winter's work.

Fred G. Cheney, manager of the Lawrence branch of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, left this week for Richmond, Va., where he is to attend the annual convention of the Telephone Pioneers of America.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Carney and family of Bensonhurst, N. Y., are at "Lawn Crest Inn," Sharon, for the winter. Mrs. Carney is a sister of Mrs. Adelaide E. French, formerly of this city, who has conducted the Inn for the past three years.

The South Side Improvement society held its first meeting of the season in the basement of the Packard school Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. Important business was transacted.

An order directing City Clerk Wade to petition the Legislature of 1915 in behalf of the municipal council, to provide for the annexation of a part of Methuen to the city of Lawrence, as recommended in the first annual report of the city planning board, will be introduced at the regular session of the council next Monday by Alderman Bradbury.

The annual Hallowe'en party given to the pupils of Prof. A. G. Labonte was tendered them Monday evening in Saunders hall. About 100 couples were present and an enjoyable evening was spent. Dancing was enjoyed from 8 o'clock until midnight. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion, the walls being draped with yellow and black bunting upon which were numerous black cats and witches. About 200 incandescent lights illuminated the hall and these were enclosed in Japanese lanterns upon which were figures symbolic of the season. Each of the dancers was given a souvenir. Music for dancing was furnished by Barnsley's orchestra.

The Merrimack Valley Country Club was the scene Monday evening of a gathering unique in its history, when more than one hundred of its members assembled and presented their president a handsome solid silver service of five pieces with a kettle and tray. The gift, which was a complete surprise to the recipient, was given him in appreciation of the splendid and efficient manner in which he has served during the six years he has occupied the high office, and will make an excellent addition to the fine new residence Mr. Clay has recently completed on the Howe road, not far from the club grounds.

METHUEN

Following the regular prayer service at the Baptist church Tuesday evening there was a business meeting of the Cheerful Workers' society.

Rev. A. Gertrude Earle left this week for Syracuse, N. Y., where she will attend a convention of the National Missionary associations. Rev. Miss Earle is a delegate from Massachusetts.

Minerva Rebekah Lodge, No. 20; D. of D., held a Hallowe'en social in Odd Fellows hall on Wednesday evening, October 28, following the regular business session. The affair was for members only.

Postmaster Michael F. Cronin of Lawrence has given notice to those in town who desire to be listed as selling farm produce that a directory of such persons is to be prepared and distributed in Lawrence. Local farmers may have their names included.

The regular grange meeting was held Thursday evening of this week instead of November 5. After business transactions a Hallowe'en social was conducted, an appropriate luncheon being served.

Men were engaged Monday in keeping the fire on the Searles land off Summer street in check. The fire started last week and worked its way into the peat meadow, where it has since been smoldering. Once the fire department has been called upon to keep it away from houses on Pleasant street. The other peat fire beyond Mystic pond is still burning, but the services of the firemen have not been required since the recent rain. The fire may not be entirely extinguished until snow falls.

The selectmen will hold a hearing on November 6 on the petition of the Boston and Northern Street Railway company for a relocation of tracks in the east part of the town. The company requests permission to place a turnout on the southerly side of Swan street commencing at a point about opposite Vermont street, and extending in an easterly direction about 600 feet. It is expected with this turnout much better service may be given the residents of the east part of the town morning and night, when traffic is congested. Heretofore the patrons have been put to much inconvenience because of crowded cars and long waits at the Prospect street siding.

Mr. Bryant stirred in his hearers a resolution to go forth and back up the national neutrality with individual neutrality so that it shall be a real neutrality, that when the time for mediation comes, this country can act as mediator with an influence that will make for a final adjustment agreeable to all sides, that will work for the end of bitterness between nations; so that these things of world importance shall be built on a firm foundation.

A quartet consisting of Miss Mary W. Scott, Miss Jean E. Dundas, Walter S. Rhodes and George A. Christie, rendered the hymn "Angel of Peace" and the congregation joined heartily in the hymns that were given out. A collection was taken in behalf of the Red Cross relief work.

FOR RE-ELECTION
FIFTH DISTRICT

Congressman John Jacob Rogers

A Record of Achievement

Two years ago the Fifth District sent Hon. John Jacob Rogers of Lowell to Congress as its Representative. Read this condensed record of some of his accomplishments in that brief period:

IN 1913—In April:

Began to work for reform within the Republican party as soon as he reached Washington, by introducing a resolution to change the method of apportioning delegates to the National Convention.

In May:—Addressed the House in an effort to save the flax industry of Andover. This action was taken at the request of the wage-earners of that town.

Made an important tariff speech in the interest of the wage-earners of the Fifth District.

Was appointed a member of the "Committee of Seven" of progressive Republican U. S. Senators and Congressmen to reorganize the Republican party. In session with this committee for three days and nights, and wrote a part of its report, providing for reforms.

Named as a member of the important Committee on Foreign Affairs and also the Committee on Elections.

In June:—Obtained for the Lowell Post Office appropriation making possible much needed improvement.

Advocated a deep sea channel in the Merrimack from Lowell to Newburyport.

In July:—Introduced a bill for the registration of lobbyists at Washington.

In August:—Threw open the Naval Academy appointments to competitive examination, thus giving any young man in the district a chance to gain it.

Made an important address at a mass meeting of the Progressives and Republicans of New Jersey.

Obtained rifles for General Ames Camp of Spanish War Veterans.

In September:—Made two important speeches on the currency bill.

Sought to obtain a larger Post Office for Lowell, and gained a recommendation for an appropriation of $515,000 from the Treasury Department.

In October:—Brought the Committee on Rivers and Harbors on from Washington to view the Merrimack, and urged it be made navigable in order to give the district cheaper freight rates.

Secured for New England 15 more delegates to the Republican National Convention.

Introduced a resolution urging race equality and fair treatment for the negroes in Washington.

In November:—Appointed Chelmsford, Methuen and Stow boys as principal and alternates to the Naval Academy.

Addressed the House in support of increased trade with South America.

Spent ten day Christmas recess of Congress—the only respite from the eighteen months' continuous session—in visiting personally every large town in his district for the convenience of his constituents.

In 1914—In February:—Spoke in opposition to the Shackleford Post Road Bill, which favored the South but hit Massachusetts hard.

Appeared before Massachusetts legislative committee at the State House to advocate the election of national committeemen by popular vote.

Introduced a bill to prevent the misbranding of textile goods.

Voted against $25,000,000 "Pork Barrel" bill.

Secured a new Post Office for North Woburn.

In March:—Made speech that attracted wide comment in and out of Congress on "The South in the Saddle."

In April:—Addressed Congress on "The Death of the Merit System in the Diplomatic Service," which was quoted with approval by leading publications throughout the country.

Supported President Wilson in his attempt to avert a Mexican war.

In May:—Blocked the Secretary of the Navy in his effort to have buying for American flags made abroad instead of in Lowell.

Obtained from Government Fisheries 2,500,000 young fish for ponds and streams of the district.

In July:—Introduced amendment to the Constitution giving Congress the power to regulate the employment of women and children throughout the country.

In August:—Opened the appointments to West Point to competitive examinations to all young men in this Congressional district.

In September:—Voted in support of the Anti-Trust bill.

Supported President Wilson in his neutrality position towards the European war.

In October:—In his speech entitled "Out-Heroding Herod," urged national legislation to compel the South to treat working women and children with the same humanity as it is at all times shown in Massachusetts.

VOTERS OF THE FIFTH DISTRICT, THIS IS THE RECORD OF A CONGRESSMAN WHO HAS MADE GOOD IN TWO YEARS; THE RECORD OF A MAN ALWAYS ON THE JOB. YOU WERE NOT MISTAKEN IN GIVING HIM YOUR SUPPORT IN 1912. YOU CAN TRUST HIM NOW.

The only danger is in over-confidence in his re-election. WILL YOU COME OUT AND VOTE FOR HIM NEXT TUESDAY?

TELEPHONE CHANGES COMPLETE

Andover's Exchange "Cut Over" Last Sunday and "Ring-up" is Eliminated. Description of Mechanism in the Local Office

Once in a while the people of Andover are forcibly reminded that Andover is growing; that the facilities offered for their comfort and enjoyment and for their doing business are improving. Perhaps no recent event has excited the interest of the natives as did the announcement made some months ago that a telephone system of the most modern type was to be installed for their use.

The construction has steadily gone on, and on Saturday evening, October 24, the old system was discarded and the new one cut into service. At 9.30 p.m., when the "load" had fallen to a point where no connections would be disturbed, orders were given to "cut." Several of the Company's employees were ready for the word and they instantly severed the wires on the old cable strips and at once the old switchboard was "dead."

Extra operators were at the new board anxiously waiting to answer the first call, which fell to the lot of Operator Nellie Reynolds, who found Mrs. Frank Gleason calling for a number. From then on, calls came in without interruption. Men were started at once stripping the old switchboard, preparing to remove it, which was done early Sunday morning.

The "cut over" was entirely successful, being accomplished with remarkable smoothness. Miss Mabel V. Harrigan, Chief Operator, had her entire force on duty and they demonstrated their ability to handle the new equipment, which will furnish such greatly improved service to subscribers. Sunday morning several subscribers called on the telephone offering congratulations. The operators were recipients of a large bouquet of flowers sent by the Lawrence operators.

There is much work yet to be done to finally complete the job. Many instruments and appliances at subscribers' stations will have to be changed to supplant temporary work and the divided ringing gradually arranged for, as previously announced.

The interest of the public was unusually aroused as was shown by the number of townspeople who visited the office during the evening, among whom were Selectmen Donald and Bowman, Representative Bailey, Town Clerk Higgins, Messrs. Rogers, Angus, Sellers, Grout and Donald.

Among the telephone officials present were, District Traffic Chief Wilson, District Plant Chief Mahoney, Traffic Engineers Bealer, Sherwell, Division Toll Wire Chief Tirrill, Manager Cheney, Wire Chief Humphrey, and Messrs. Burdick, Haynes, Gougeon, Cunnings.

Million Carriages Made in 1913

The impression has gained currency, because of the popularity of the automobile, that carriages are no longer manufactured in very great quantities. Yet the committee on statistics at the convention of the Carriage Builders' National Association shows that considerably over one million horse-drawn vehicles were built in this country last year.

Large as is the figure, it does not include business, farm or trucking wagons, but takes account only of such vehicles as the buggy, surrey and other light carriages.

Statistics show that there were made on an average of a million to a million and a quarter horse-drawn spring vehicles each year for eight years prior to January 1, 1913, and during the year 1913 the number exceeded 1,200,000.

It is fair to assume that the vehicle product of 1913 was sold for more than $60,000,000. A minimum of $35,000,000 is invested in carriage factories in this country, to say nothing of the enormous capital involved in the wagon business, while the investment in manufacturing establishments making materials and parts exclusively for horse-drawn vehicles is probably as much more.

A brief description of the operation of the system follows. The taking down of the receiver from the hook causes a tiny light to glow in front of the answering operator, who answers a certain number of lines. She takes up the brass-tipped cord, inserts the tip or "plug" as it is called, into the hole or "jack," just above the light, at the same time throwing a key with the other hand in order to switch her transmitter into direct communication with the caller and repeats the old familiar, "Number, please?" The caller responds by saying "143" for instance. The operator takes up the cord which is a mate to the other, locates the jack numbered 143 and tries the line by tapping the tip for an instant on the shell of the jack to ascertain if the line is busy. If no click is heard she pushes in the plug and operates the key in the opposite direction. The first action connects the subscriber's line; the second causes his bell to ring. When the connection is over with and the parties replace their receivers on the hooks, lights associated with this pair of cords glow, indicating the conversation is ended. It is evident that when an operator is called, it is much easier to make the connection than to say the line is busy, as was at one time the popular misconception.

In the terminal room where the lines enter from the outside are protective devices, charging machines, for charging storage batteries, testing apparatus for detecting and eliminating troubles, and miscellaneous apparatus.

The personnel of the force are: Fred G. Cheney, Manager; Mabel V. Harrigan, Chief Operator; W. B. Humphrey, Wire Chief; Clare V. Norton, Test Man, and twelve operators are employed.

The Company intends to have a visiting day in the near future when the subscribers and general public will be especially invited to inspect the office and witness a demonstration of the intricate workings of the switchboard and associated apparatus.
